We must:

ADVOCATE

You can join with JDI, our members, and allies to amplify our many voices on public policy, funding priorities, and systems change at the state and national level. Learn more about JDI’s work with schools, businesses, health care professionals, government, and advocacy organizations to advance responsive policies, expand resources, and promote prevention.

COLLABORATE

JDI engages with an array of organizations and initiatives to draw strategic links between violence and the social and economic conditions that impact safety, options, and independence for survivors. These needs include affordable housing, accessible healthcare, safe educational environments, and other crucial survivor-centered, trauma-informed and culturally specific resources. Explore how you can help us build a powerful movement that is diverse, wide-ranging, and inclusive.

INNOVATE

JDI’s work to improve economic justice for survivors, address technology safety, shape public conversations through the media, and challenge rigid gender roles are all cutting edge approaches that are making Massachusetts stronger. Expand your vision of how you can be part of the solution and help JDI do more to prevent gender-based violence.

What will it take to create a world with gender equity, racial justice and safety for all?
The prevalence of sexual and domestic violence threatens the well-being of children, youth and adults in every community in Massachusetts and around the world.

The solution is our strength in numbers.

In families, neighborhoods, schools, congregations, and workplaces, people you know are impacted every day by sexual and domestic violence, sexual harassment and exploitation, including human trafficking, stalking and other forms of gender-based violence.

We’ve come a long way in exposing these issues that too often remain hidden and thrive on silence. Today, there are networks of services, policies, and systems that provide options, resources and hope for survivors and communities.

Jane Doe Inc. (JDI) has been at the forefront of this work in Massachusetts for decades. JDI is the one and only statewide membership coalition of sexual and domestic violence organizations in Massachusetts. These nearly 60 community-based organizations provide life-saving services, promote awareness and prevention, and work to improve the responses and options for survivors from the Berkshires to the Cape and every community in between. JDI’s mission is to complement and support the expertise and leadership of our members with a statewide strategy to tackle the systemic issues that foster and perpetuate violence.

And we have a lot of work still to do TOGETHER.

We find strength in our membership, our partnerships, and in our commitment to social change. Together, we will prevent conditions that enable sexual and domestic violence to flourish, heal communities, promote healthy relationships, and advance the cause of justice.

You can be part of the solution.

JDI is making an impact by:

- Engaging our statewide membership and allies to solve complex individual and community problems, to advance safety, healing, and justice, and to find solutions that address the lived experiences of those who historically have been unserved, underserved, and inadequately served.

- Advocating for change through state and federal legislation and funding as well as in public and private systems to improve access to services, resources, and justice for all communities, including communities of color, LGBQ/T (lesbian, gay, bisexual, queer, and transgender) communities, and immigrants and refugees.

- Training and support for advocates and organizations and promoting resources to make current best practices accessible to all our members and partners, keeping them up to date on an ever-evolving field.

- Promoting prevention and actions to amplify the work happening at the local level, to engage the media to impact public opinion, and to shift the culture through initiatives such as our #ReimagineManhood campaign.

- Focusing on the impact of trauma and oppression on individuals and whole communities and supporting advocates in the field who bear witness to trauma every day through The JDI Initiative for Safety and Justice, funded with major support from the New England Patriots Charitable Foundation.

- Collaborating with other systems to improve their ability to address the diverse needs, well-being, and safety of survivors such as through The JDI Strengthening Healthcare Collaborations Project.
